One possible version:

Dear Alice,

I'm so happy to hear that you are interested in Chinese festivals. There are many wonderful festivals in China, but my favorite one is the Spring Festival.

The Spring Festival is the most important festival for Chinese people. It usually comes in late January or early February and lasts for about 15 days. Before the festival, people clean their houses thoroughly to sweep away bad luck.

They also buy new clothes and a lot of food.

On New Year's Eve, families get together and have a big feast. We eat dumplings, which are a symbol of reunion. After dinner, we stay up late to watch the Spring Festival Gala on TV. At midnight, people set off firecrackers to welcome the new year.

During the Spring Festival, children receive red envelopes with money inside as gifts. People visit their relatives and friends, saying "Happy New Year" to each other. There are also lion and dragon dances in the streets, which are very lively and exciting.

I hope my description can give you a better understanding of the Spring Festival. If you have a chance to come to China during this festival, you will surely have a great time.
