第一节（共 15 小题；每小题 2 分，满分 30 分）

阅读下列短文，从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中，选出最佳选项。

A

Tian Wangui and his wife Lu Min are villagers in Qiantian Village, Liaoning Province. They began planting trees over forty years ago. With their hard work, the two barren (贫瘠的) mountains are covered by trees now.

After leaving the army in the 1980s, Tian got back home and began planting fruit trees on the hills. In 1982, the couple got the contract rights (承包经营权) of two mountains. At first, they planted some young fruit trees on part of the land. In order to water them, they had to carry water up to the top of the mountains many times a day by themselves.

Now, the two mountains are covered by more than 50,000 trees of over 20 kinds. More than 2,000 birds live in the trees in the mountains.

“We cared for the mountains and trees as we cared for our children,” said Lu. “Even as we grow old, our children will protect the woods, watch over the birds and keep our dream alive.”

1. What did Tian Wangui do before he began planting trees?

- A. He served in the army.
- B. He watched over the birds.
- C. He cared for the children.

B. A couple taught their children to plant trees for over forty years.

C. A couple kept planting trees on the mountains for over forty years.

D. A couple helped the villagers plant trees on the mountains for over forty years.

ChatGPT has quickly become popular around the world because of its advanced conversational abilities. It can answer questions, do translations, give the main idea of articles and even write codes (代码) for a computer program. It is as good as a human inside a computer.

ChatGPT is making life very convenient. A time might come when people hand it some articles and it makes a well-made report. That could, however, mean job losses. After all, if a computer program can write codes, then it would make a programmer lose his job.

That may be a worry, but it is still too early to worry about that. ChatGPT has more advanced learning features, but it still follows the same technological way. Its biggest advantage lies in the ability to turn words into a language from an ocean of data, but it's still not that creative. AI can quickly draw a picture, but that picture will be based on pictures that it has seen. It can also write books about the future, but the books will be based on articles about the future that it has read.

In comparison, a human brain imagines the future and then tries hard to realize it. AI can imagine a future with faster spaceships, but it can't imagine a world of space as humans can.

So there is no need to worry too much. By being creative there will be plenty of chances for humans to win over AI.

4. What does the underlined word "It" in Paragraph 1 refer to?

A. The world. B. ChatGPT. C. A computer. D. A program.

5. How is the fourth paragraph developed?

A. By telling stories. B. By giving examples.

C. By listing numbers. D. By making comparisons.

6. Which is the biggest advantage of ChatGPT according to the passage?

A. It has its own creativity.

- B. It has conversational abilities.
 - C. It has more advanced learning features.
 - D. It has the ability to turn words into a language.
7. In which part can you find the passage in a newspaper?
- A. Sports. B. Science. C. Education. D. Business.

In Brazil, public school students face significant challenges in developing writing skills essential for success in the national university entrance exam, ENEM. While Brazil has made progress in school attendance and literacy (读写能力) rates in the last two decades, functional literacy skills remain low.

To address this problem, Letrus, an education technology company and also one of the winners of 2019 UNESCO Prize, creates for Brazilian students a personalized learning experience aided by artificial intelligence (AI). The Letrus literacy program gives students an immediate feedback on their writing by identifying writing patterns. The essays are then reviewed by a teacher who makes additional comments. “Science has an excellent potential to help with more strategic decisions. Letrus and teachers are coming together to improve our students’ learning paths,” says Letrus co-founder Luis Junqueiras.

To date, over 65,000 students have already used the programme throughout Brazil’s 26 states. In 2019, a partnership with Espirito Santo State’s Department of Education took the program to 54 cities in the state of Espirito Santo, reaching 12,000 students and 400 teachers from 121 schools. In this project, 90% of schools improved their students’ grades after a five-month period.

For the future, Letrus co-founder wants to increase the scale and quality of their service at a cheaper price so that it can be “accessible to citizens of any age”. He also hopes to inspire other programmes for future generations with a message: “Together, we need to engage in movements in favor of otherness, diversity and wisdom.”

As for the prize itself, Luis Junqueira welcomes the “energy boost” this recognition is bringing to his team as well as the new opportunities for partnerships in the field of education this prize opens the door to. “At the same time, the prize symbolizes that we are moving in the right direction and that the trail now has more light and possibilities to open new doors in the future.”

12. Why is Letrus literacy program launched in Brazil?

- A. To prepare students for graduation. B. To increase school attendances.
C. To improve students’ literacy skills. D. To attend a UNESCO competition.

13. How does the program help Brazilian students?

- A. Through analyzing their writing styles. B. With the help of educational specialists.
C. By providing personalized writing tasks. D. In cooperation with teachers and AI.

14. What are the statistics in Paragraph 3 about?

- A. Progress in school attendance. B. Trouble in public schools.
C. Achievements of the Programme. D. Results in an international test.

15. According to Luis Junqueira, which can be an “energy boost”?

- A. Confidence aroused by the award. B. Advice on better team building.
C. A new partnership with schools. D. A guide with a sense of direction.

第二节(共 5 小题;每小题 2 分, 满分 10 分)

阅读下面短文, 从短文后的选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

Exercise is one of the most important things you can do for your health. Assuming you have the all-clear and are ready to start, it’s wise to know some basic safety rules. 16:

Warm up. Warming up for five to 10 minutes prepares your body for exercise by providing more oxygen to your muscles, lubricating (润滑) your joints, and increasing range of motion.

17. If you haven’t been exercising regularly, plan to increase your activity level to high-intensity over time. Going too hard or doing too much or too soon can cause overuse injuries like stress fractures (骨折), stiff or sore joints and muscles.

Practice good form. Never sacrifice good form and posture. With good form, the different parts of your body work more efficiently with one another, and you are able to get greater benefits from exercise. Good form also helps you avoid injuries. 18; using proper form prevents that. Never force yourself to go farther, or lift more weight unless you can maintain good form while doing so.

Don't forget to cool down and stretch afterward. 19. Finishing off with some stretches after your cool-down will improve your flexibility and range of motion.

Choose shoes designed for your type of exercise. 20. Replace shoes every six to 12 months depending on how often you work out and how quickly the shoes wear out.

A. Don't overdo it.

B. Allow time for rest and recovery.

C. There's always a risk of injury with exercise.

D. Following are some guidelines to ensure a safe workout.

E. Activity-specific footwear is designed to meet the unique demands of a particular sport.

F. Gradually slowing your activity at the end of a workout instead of stopping abruptly will prevent you from feeling dizzy.

G. For example, allowing your knee to extend farther forward than the ends of your foot when you move forward suddenly can hurt your knee.

42、阅读下面材料，根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段，使之成为一篇完整的短文。

Extremely tired and sleepy, I arrived in Jordan just before midnight. Picking up my car rental, the agent said something about a gas station. Trying to stay awake, I really didn't pay attention.

The next morning, I woke up feeling refreshed and excited for the adventure that lay ahead. I enjoyed a wonderful breakfast and packed my car with essential supplies, including a map, a first aid kit, and plenty of water for the journey. Full of excitement, I headed to the desert castles in the east. While driving, I noticed that there wasn't a fuel gauge (油表) on the dashboard. Strange, but I didn't think twice about it. I had just got the rental so there would be plenty of fuel.

After passing numerous gas stations, I was finally in the open desert. Complete isolation. And that's when my car came to a stop. What?! My heart pounded in my chest. I tried to stay calm, but my mind raced with anxiety. In the middle of nowhere, I opened the hood staring at the engine with no idea what to look for. What was I going to do? I took out my phone, but there was no signal. The sun was already high in the sky, and I could feel the sweat running down my back. I sat down on the side of the road, hoping someone would come and help.

Luckily, within 10 minutes, a Jordanian pulled over. A tall man in his thirties got off the car. He didn't speak English and my Arabic was limited. After examining the car, he told me through hand gestures (手势) that I was out of gas. Who knew that in Jordan, rental cars don't come with a full tank of gas?! I had thought that the car would be fully fueled when I picked it up, but obviously, that wasn't the case. Now that I knew the problem, what now?

注意：1. 续写词数应为 150 个左右；

2. 请按如下格式在答题卡的相应位置作答。

The Jordanian invited me to get in his car through a hand gesture.

My thanks, a smile, and one photo together were all he wanted.
